laura clark hansen

Please Send Hats

A Baby Boomer's Rude Awakening to Ovarian Cancer

Please Send Hats is a humorous and heartwarming presentation that tells Laura Clark Hansen's moving and often hilarious story of cancer survival.

The presentation intertwines vibrant reflections on a Baby Boomer's past with insightful observations about the transformative power that cancer can have in the present.

The program emphasizes the importance of early detection, and teaches the warning signs of ovarian cancer. It provides hope and inspiration for survivors, caregivers, and their loved ones–as it follows Laura's journey to rebuild and reclaim a life altered by illness.

Laura Clark-Hansen is an actress, playwright and theater producer. She holds a Masters Degree in Human Development and is the founder of Cornerstone Productions LLC, a theater company dedicated to helping groups and organizations develop exceptional programs that are educational and entertaining. She brings 20 years of writing and performing experience to the most important role she's ever had to play; the role of a supportive survivor and passionate advocate in the fight against Ovarian Cancer.

Dr. David Kushner–Director of Gynecologic Oncology at the University Of Wisconsin Medical Center said of Please Send Hats; "Experts from around North America on sexuality and cancer were uniformly amazed by her performance. Doctors and professors found themselves crying at times and laughing at others...Laura makes us all think about cancer survivorship and treatment in a different way."

This presentation is sponsored by Beaumont's One to One Ovarian Cancer Support and Sharing & Caring Breast Education and Support Groups.

It is intended for all audiences. Please bring family and friends!

ONE TO ONE Ovarian Cancer Support Group

Breast Cancer Education and Support Sharing & Caring® Beaumont Health System

Tuesday, November 13, 2012

Beaumont Hospital, Royal Oak, Administration Building Auditorium.

Arrival time: 6:30 p.m.

Park in South Parking Deck adjacent to the Administration Building.

To register visit: classes.beaumont.edu or call 800-633-7377. Registration is recommended.